However, if your goal is to provide a basis for long-term energy supply and industrial development, then large-scale systems will be required.

Dander is a term used to refer to old skin that is shed off from the cat's body in the forms of minute flakes.